Historic Houses and Gardens

England is famous for its many grand historic houses and glorious gardens. Here in the East of England we are within easy distance of many fine houses, such as nearby Anglesey Abbey, Kentwell Hall in Suffolk, Felbrigg Hall in Norfolk, and Audley End House in Essex. And you may like to take a tour of the famous University of Cambridge colleges and explore the internationally-renowned Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew in West London. On this Study Holiday for small groups, all excursions are accompanied by knowledgeable guides.

Audley End House

Kew Gardens

Ely Cathedral

Ely

Ely provides an ideal base for excursions to many places of interest with direct rail links to Cambridge, Norwich and London. Famous for its cathedral, Ely is situated in the heart of the Fen district of East Anglia. The city itself is small – the second smallest in England, with a population of around 18,000 – so it's easy to explore on foot, while offering plenty to see and do. Find out more about Ely and the surrounding area at www.visitley.org.uk

English Tuition

Itineraries can be designed with or without English lessons. If you would like to take advantage of this option, the content of English lessons is designed to complement excursions to these and other similar places of interest - a great way to practise your language skills!

Accommodation

There are various accommodation options in and around Ely – you can choose to stay in a local hotel or B&B, or there are several self-catering cottages and apartments if you would rather be independent. We are happy to advise and arrange bookings. You could also stay with one of our carefully selected host families - staying in an English home offers a uniquely rewarding and personal perspective.

Sample programme

Below is an example of what could be included in this Study Holiday. This programme includes English tuition, but we can design a course without these sessions.
